

AFTER THE ELECTION, HIDE YOUR STUFF

Here we are, a couple of weeks before the election, and I must confess I am in awe at the staggering genius of the conspiracy for world government. The conspirators strategize not just in years, but in decades. We are looking at the culmination of a scheme that obviously was planned and set in motion many years ago, a masterful demonstration of dialectical materialism. It's no surprise that we are losing.

The Communist Party says it abolished itself. We can be sure of that because – heh, heh – the Party says so. But the Party is merely playing possum. It is about to elect a Communist President of the United States, where the government investigated, fired, fined and jailed Communists until a few years ago; and where people used to sue if you called them a Red.

Personally, I am suffering from a classic case of Yogi Berra's déjà vu all over again. Forty years ago, I covered the Democrat National Convention in Chicago, which the Communists attacked. There was tear gas. There was the Chicago Police Department's "Stink Squad," assigned to investigate the incredible, lingering stench in the lobby of the Hilton. There was the court trial of the Chicago Seven.

All these many years later, I believed that 1968 was long dead medieval history, before the internet, when you had to use a "pay phone" to make a call. What? Had you told me then that forty years later the heirs and colleagues of the Communists who attacked the convention would elect one of their own President on a Communist platform, I would have thought it less likely than the possibility that Bella Abzug could have been named Miss America.

On the other ticket, we have a leader of the illegal alien invasion of this country, a man who sponsored successful legislation to inhibit freedom of speech, a former POW, who has since done everything he can to bury the POWs still abandoned in Southeast Asia, a man who takes pains to insult the POW families, actually hugged a North Vietnamese Communist torturer at a hearing in Washington and is a staunch advocate of world government, and on and on.

I believe that John McCain's bizarre behavior is the result of prolonged and intensive Soviet interrogation and brainwashing in Vietnam, the product of which is a true Manchurian candidate. I believe that is why he made some thirty two propaganda tapes for the North Vietnamese, tapes broadcast over the loudspeakers in the prison camps, where other POWs heard them.

John Top Holland cites a report in his new book, Perfidy: The Government Cabal That Knowingly Abandoned Our Prisoners Of War and Left Them to Die (Washington, AFP, 2008), that McCain's CIA file shows he was in a Communist country in eastern Europe for a couple of years, not in a North Vietnamese hole. Were the Soviets preparing him to go home and enter politics?

So, in effect, there is a Communist at the top of each ticket. The only "difference" is in their styles and appearance, in which kind of Communist they are. The conspirators for world government must be whooping with delight. Totally benighted, we are about to vote ourselves into Communist penury and enslavement. If the people ever wake up, it could be too late.

Notice that whatever the revelations about their candidate and however many there are, Obamatrons are not impressed, not by the present certainty that he spent considerable time as a child with a Communist Party sexual degenerate, and then, as an adult, with a violent Communist terrorist in Chicago, not by the probability that he is a Communist himself, not by the fact that he is an illegal alien and therefore ineligible to be President, and not by the fact that for years he was, and maybe still is, a Muslim, and on and on. He has been trained all his life to run for President this year.

I don't believe I exaggerate very much when I speculate that the typical Obamatron would not be moved were Barney Frank caught in flagrante delicto behind Senator Hussein. He is "the One." He is "the Messiah." Why? The answer is whacking you upside the head. The present fiasco could only be possible because for a couple of generations now our population has literally been brainwashed in our Communist government schools. That national brainwashing is reinforced daily by our Communist media.

Who will win? I have built a reputation over almost half a century for brevity, clarity and honesty, and I shall not disappoint you here. I don't know. But it makes no real difference. Again, the tops of the tickets are Reds. Both parties have collaborated to install the legal machinery that would legitimize a wall to wall Communist dictatorship. Posse comitatus has been repealed, and so on.

What should we realistically expect after the election? Because people are asking about it, I need to expand on a subject I have already raised. Many Americans are storing food, firearms, fuel and other essentials. A good idea! Go ahead and do it. But some are thinking they will "sit it out."

When supermarket shelves go bare, when the ammo is gone, when the lights go out and there is no more gas, etc., they will reload at home, fire up the propane lanterns, barbecue those sides of beef, enjoy feasting and congratulate themselves on their foresight. A silly idea! What did you imagine the government will be doing while you "sit it out?"

Large, ugly men with no senses of humor, heavily armed federal agents, will come to your house, break down the door if they have to, and confiscate what you have stored. They will carry it out, load it on trucks and take it away. You will never see all that toilet paper, those medicines, those MREs, etc., again. What? They can't do that!

They can't? What about the Executive Orders? Remember? They must be important because every President has tinkered with them. They have the force of law. When the President declares a national emergency, the Executive Orders give him legal authority to seize every thimble and lug nut, every seed and female hygiene product, in fact every female in the country. And the fact that you are hoarding all those things is an obvious emergency.

Look them up. Neither Hitler, nor Stalin, nor even Mao Tse-tung was able to seize that much power. They didn't have the technology. The next President, a Communist, will. No problem, though. Der Plan calls for them to load you on another truck and take you to a camp, where you will recline in taxpayer comfort while Der Heimat Security decides what to do.

Remember that those camps are financed, finished, equipped and staffed – and empty. Needless to say, for reasons of safety and to protect The Children, you will be forbidden to bring your firearms to the camps. We must do what it takes to protect The Children. And a member of the Clergy Response Team – who believes Romans 13 says you must obey government whatever it does – will be there to reassure you.

Indeed, when you arrive you will find many friends and neighbors, because people from miles around will be concentrated there. What would you call those camps? Let's see. People will be relocated there. Why not "relocation centers?" Good. Again, people will be concentrated there. Hmm! Any thoughts?

This part of our analysis is not speculation. We know this will happen. We know it because both of the candidates are Communists. Just this morning, my guest on the Sting of Stang, Vietnam POW wife

Diane van Renselaar, confirmed and amplified for me on the air what Army Colonel William Atkins told her (cited in the Holland book). According to his CIA file, John Sidney McCain spent a couple of years after capture not in a North Vietnam prison being tortured, but in Communist Czechoslovakia being "wined and dined."

So we shall get one kind of Communism or another. And somewhere in the process you will make a choice. You do not have the choice not to make a choice. You will make it. Doing nothing is also a choice. What choice will you have? I am a total amateur on the subject. Alexander Solzhenitsyn is an expert.

In his Gulag Archipelago, he explains that even while they are dragging you away, you will tell yourself it is a mistake. I am innocent. They will let me go. "At what exact point, then, should one resist? When one's belt is taken away? When one is ordered to face into a corner? When one crosses the threshold of one's home? . . ."

In a famous footnote on page 13 of my edition, he writes: "And how we burned in the camps later, thinking: What would things have been like if every Security operative, when he went out at night to make an arrest, had been uncertain whether he would return alive . . . . Or if, during periods of mass arrests . . . people had not simply sat there in their lairs, paling with terror at every bang of the downstairs door . . . and had boldly set up in the downstairs hall an ambush of half a dozen people with axes, hammers, pokers, or whatever else was at hand? . . ."

"If . . . if . . . We didn't love freedom enough. . . . We submitted with pleasure! . . . We purely and simply deserved everything that happened afterward."

Solzhenitsyn says “resistance should have begun right there, at the moment of the arrest itself. But it did not begin.” Of course, he is talking about Russia. Here the same thing would have a different style. For instance, in the Soviet Union you were simply arrested. Here, if you ask one of the super patriot zombies whether you are being arrested, he will say you are not, but you must go along to the camp.

So what will you do? Will you simply give up your stash and get on the bus? Right now you probably don't know yourself. You may not know until it happens. But we do know they are coming. We do know who the enemy is. The enemy – and I mean this literally, not metaphorically – are for instance the national Communist media.

People like Katie Kook and Chris Matthews and Bill Maher, outfits like the Communist News Network (CNN) and the Communist Broadcasting System (CBS) are just as much enemies as Wehrmacht Panzer units invading our country in uniform would have been in 1943. They are not confused. They know what they are doing. They will not stop until they destroy you. And they are accessible. You don't need me to tell you what to do with such an enemy.

The enemy is Helicopter Ben Bernanke, Ponzi Paulson, Madam Peelousy, Butt jumper Barney Frank and Chris Dodd, the bottom slice of Ted Kennedy's “waitress sandwich.” And on and on. The Red professors. All the people who routinely spit in your face; the people who don't care how you vote, for whom the vote is a mere charade; the people who have destroyed your job and intend to dissolve your country.

They have gotten away with it, so far, because you have not yet made them sufficiently afraid when they set foot in your neighborhoods. The soles inside their Guccis don't yet tingle nervously when they set foot on the tarmac. The ones who are elected must return to the districts once in a while to maintain the pretense that they represent you, but they don't yet wonder whether they will return to Washington alive.

What el presidente Jorge W. Boosh would call “el momento de verdad” is coming soon. Look at the Executive Orders. Then read Solzhenitsyn.
